

Severe Weather Affecting Operations

Due to the unprecedented weather event throughout the south-central part of North America, our operations in Texas and Mexico have been affected. This difficult circumstance, of course, comes at the inopportune time of coping with a pandemic.

Our Texas & Mexico Operations: We're working to support our manufacturing and warehousing teams in both locations from our California location.

While we have managed to partially continue operations during this severe weather event, we are also expecting interruptions to continue into next week for a full recovery. So, we ask for your patience and support as we work to support our colleagues, and to mitigate impact to our customers.
