We are pleased to announce that Anh Tran has been promoted to the position of Applications Engineering Manager.

Anh began her career at Data Aire in June 2016 as an Engineering Intern working with the Product Development and Applications Engineering team. After graduating in 2017 from the University of California, Irvine with a Bachelor of Science in Mechanical Engineering, Anh rejoined Data Aire as an Applications Engineer.

Since starting as an intern with Data Aire, Anh has continued to advance her technical abilities and has demonstrated her capability to expand her knowledge of our product, our customer's needs, data center design practices, project delivery process, project leadership and many more areas of benefit to Data Aire.

Anh will continue enhancing and improving the estimating and project delivery processes, while also mentoring the Application team members via her experience.

Soon, Anh will be starting the Construction Specifications Institute CDT Certification training which will again, expand Anh's knowledge and experiences.

Anh's transition to the new role will be effective on Monday, May 10, 2021.

Please join me in congratulating Anh.

Sincerely,

Ted Marwitz
Director of Engineering
