Re: Global Shortage of Microchips Affecting Shipments

As I'm sure you are aware, there is a global supply chain shortage of microchips that is impacting many industries including our own. As a result, we are experiencing shortages and long lead times for numerous critical electronic components. We are currently working all practicable solutions in effort to limit the impact on our business. That said, you should expect for your orders to experience extended lead times.

Where we can, we will provide partial order fulfillment for all items that can be completed prior to back ordered items.

Our team will communicate updates on a job-by-job basis.

We apologize for this disruption, and appreciate your assistance in managing through this industry-wide challenge.
